R-H students honored

Fourteen members of the Randolph-Henry V.I.C.A. Club visited Halifax County High School to compete with other students throughout the District on Saturday, Feb. 28. The students competed in Architectual and Machine Drafting, Commercial Art and Masonry, receiving two first places and a second place trophy.

George Brogden did an outstanding job representing the Masonry department and was awarded first place for the brick laying competition. Representing Randolph-Henry in Commercial Art, Bruce Marston and Ralph Johnson swept the competition, receiving both the first and second place awards. (Randolph-Henry being relatively new to this type of competition faced such high schools as Halifax and George Washington High School competing against the best of each school.)

The two first-place winners from Randolph-Henry, George Brogden and Bruce Marston, have been invited to compete in Richmond on April 3, 4, 5 for the State Title. If either should win at Richmond he would then go to Atlanta Georgia for the National Competition.

Much of the credit for Randolph-Henry's success in the V.I.C.A. Competition must be given to the Advisors. Cliff Jones, and Leon Lawing, Sr. contributed much of their time to the preparation of the students who competed at Halifax.

Charlotte County Vocational Tech students recently won first prize in brick laying in competition over ten counties. George Brogden, with Leon Lawing Sr as masonry instructor took first prize in overall competition.

Bruce Marston and Ralph Johnson have been invited to compete in State Contest. in Richmond, the 10, 11, and 12 of April. If either should win in State Contest he would go to Atlanta, Ga. for National Competition. Instructors, Masonry, Leon Lawing Sr. and Cliff Jones in Drafting.

IN-SERVICE EDUCATION for K-2 departmental meeting was held on March 6, 1981. Mrs. Wanda Simpson, first grade teacher, and Miss Linda Chittum, kindergarten teacher, presented demonstrations using discards converted to a "hands-on" approach for teaching science concepts. Pictured above are these two Primary School teachers using pipe, bleach bottle, milk cartons, and fishing tackle to construct musical instruments. The concepts of light, sound, and electricity were explored.

Teachers are instructing students to ask questions and search for answers to problems instead of simply relying on what the textbook says. Productive thinking skills can be the results. "Our future well-being depends greatly on knowledge in the sciences."

Appomattox gets funds for anti-litter campaign

Robert W. Slocum, commissioner of Virginia's division of litter control, today announced that grants totaling $30,728 have been awarded to Appomattox County, Pamplin City, the town of Appomattox, Altavista, Campbell County, Brookneal, and Lynchburg for local litter control activity.

The purpose of the grants program is to serve as a catalyst to new and expanded litter control activity at the local level. All of the state's cities, counties, and incorporated towns are eligible to apply for division grant funds.

Localities applying for 1981 grants are eligible to receive twice the amount of funding awarded in previous years. The division of litter control is presently making a budget transition from a calendar year to the state's fiscal year. To accomplish this transition, the present grant period is being extended for one time only-- from 12 to 18 months. Localities awarded grants this year will receive two full years of funding for this 18-month grant period.

Appomattox County, the Town of Appomattox, and Pamplin City will combine their grant funds (totaling $6,240) to identify and eliminate illegal dumping sites, and to support the activities of a special litter law enforcement officer.

In announcing the funding of these programs, Slocum states that his agency is seeing "a marked improvement in the quality of the local litter control programs being proposed and implemented. There is no doubt that the majority of communities now implementing programs have come to understand the important role of education in litter prevention. We're seeing fewer and fewer programs that revolve around litter cleanups alone and more that incorporate plans for education and law enforcement."

The division of litter control will be awarding $1,128,000 in grants to Virginia localities during the 1981-82 (18-month) grants program.

For more information concerning the Appomattox litter control program, contact: W. M. Caldwell, Jr., Coordinator, Appomattox Litter Control Program, 804-352-8131.
